Clan Drummond. A noble family descended from a Prince of Hungary whose sister was married to Malcolm III. of Scotland. This Prince obtained from the Crown a grant of the lands of Drummond, in Stirlingshire, from which the family took their name. They always occupied a place of high influence in the government of the country and several members of the family were ennobled, including the Earls of Perth and the Viscounts Strathallan. The former title was attainted after the Stuart rising of 1715, but was revived by Queen Victoria. The badge is "Wild Thyme."
